Web page layers

This page is drawn the way web applications print: inside a framed card, with a second text layer laid exactly over the first, and with one paragraph covered by an opaque panel drawn after it.

What the reader sees

Only the text that shows on the page comes back, each word once.

The panel above hides a paragraph, and that paragraph is not part of what the page says.

Settings

- General
- Account
- Privacy